ABOUT:

I confess to a great love of form-revealed-by-light, something I find fundamentally mysterious. I prefer to work from direct observation, but there are some images that I can generate only from photographic references. Then I rely on experience to adjust and flesh out what a camera (at least in my hands) can't deliver. I try to address levels of consciousness, environmental issues, and the feminine principle; most of my work combines at least two of these concerns as I don't see clear boundaries. A retired educator, I now spend more time in the studio. I continue to teach here and there and in my studio at home. My teaching leans toward basic skills, attitudes, and history. I taught Foundation and sophomore level courses at a community college for more than 30 years, and can't ignore the impulse to share what I value.

Classes begin September 10th, 2015 (10am - 12 noon)
